Time

Introduction

In this adverbs of frequency activity, students ask 'How often do you...?' questions and answer with adverbs and expressions of frequency.

Procedure

Give one copy of the worksheet to each student.

Begin by writing adverbs and expressions of frequency from the worksheet on the board and teaching or reviewing their usage. Keep the language up on the board for the students to use during the activity.

always	occasionally	every day
usually	rarely	once/twice a week
often	hardly ever	once/twice a month
sometimes	never	once/twice a year

The students then go through the items on the worksheet and form the 'How often do you...?' questions they need to ask to do the activity, e.g. 'How often do you eat in a restaurant?'

Students then go around the classroom asking the questions.

When a classmate replies with the same adverb or expression of frequency that is written on the worksheet, the student writes down their name in the appropriate column and asks a follow-up question. The student writes their answer in the 'More information' column.

If their answer doesn't match with the adverb of frequency on the worksheet, the student repeats the question with other classmates until one of them gives a matching response, e.g. 'I sometimes eat in a restaurant'.

Tell the students that they can only have the same name once. This is to encourage them to speak to as many different partners as possible.

When everyone has finished, the students give feedback to the rest of the class on what they found out about their classmates. Any interesting findings can be discussed in more detail.

As a variation, students can ask present simple questions with 'Do you...?' For example, 'Do you sometimes eat in a restaurant?' If a classmate replies 'Yes, I do', the student writes down their name and asks a follow-up question.
