1. Jane and I are best friends. We live in the same apartment building. We go to the same school, too. Every morning we wave to each other and say good morning.

Q. What do the girls do every morning?

Answer: (B)

2. My friend Mike asked me to play soccer after school, but I can't. I have to do my English homework. The deadline is tomorrow.

Q. What is the boy going to do?

Answer: (C)

3. Basketball is my favorite sport. I especially like it when I play basketball with my best friends, Tom and Jimmy. I think it is the best way to have fun with friends.

Q. Which sport does the boy like to play?

Answer: (C)

Part 2

Listen and answer the questions.

1.

G: Hi, Alex. Do you have any plans after school?

B: No, why do you ask?

G: Then will you come over to my house and do homework with me?

B: That sounds great, but I have to call my mom and ask for her permission first.

G: OK. Let me know after you talk to your mom.

Answer: (C)

2.

B: Hi, Helen. Do you want to play basketball after school?

G: Sorry, but I can't. I have to visit my grandfather's house with my mom. It's his birthday.

B: Where does your grandfather live?

G: He lives in another neighborhood. It only takes 20 minutes by car, but I have to go and help my mom set up for the party first.

B: I see. We can play next time. Have fun at the party.

Answer: (A)

2.

B: Hi, Robert. It's Mike. I just want to say that I'm sorry for the fight we had in P.E. class this afternoon. I guess I was too competitive during the game, and I did not think about respecting the other players. I shouldn't have punched you no matter whose fault it was. I feel really bad for hurting you. I hope you get better soon and forgive me for my bad behavior.

Answer: (C)

Part 4

Listen and answer the questions.

W: "Jessica, I'm going grocery shopping. Would you like to come with me?" Jessica's mother asked.
"OK. Let me go get my jacket," Jessica replied.
"What are we going to buy, Mom?" Jessica asked.
"We need some milk, bread, apples, and spaghetti. Can you go and get me a bag of fresh apples?" her mom asked. "OK," Jessica answered and walked to the fruit and vegetables section. When she picked out a bag of apples, someone tapped her on the shoulder. "Hey, Jessica. What are you doing here?" Jessica turned around, and there was her friend, Sarah. "Hi, Sarah. I'm shopping with my mom. Are you here with your mom too?" Jessica asked. "Yeah," replied Sarah. "Mom and I are going to bake some cookies, so we came to buy some stuff for baking. You like cookies, don't you? I will bring some to school tomorrow and we can have them together during lunchtime." "That sounds great. I can't wait to try your cookies," Jessica said excitedly. "You will love my cookies. I have to go now. See you at school tomorrow." Sarah waved and ran to the checkout counter. Her mom was already putting stuff on the counter. Jessica went back to her mom with the bag of apples.

T: What is friendship? It is a relationship between friends. Where do you find friends? You may find them at school, at the playground, or in your neighborhood. Your classmates and neighbors around your age can be your friends. Then how can you decide who you want to hang out with? We usually choose to be friends with people who have similar personalities or hobbies. If you like skateboarding, you might have a friend who enjoys skateboarding with you. If you like music, you might want to have friends who like music, just like you. Sometimes we argue or fight with our friends. What is the best way to prevent this? Don't treat others badly just because they are different from you. Respect them first, and they will respect you back. Respecting others will help you keep up good relationships with your friends.

"Good morning, Susan," she said. "Good morning Mrs. Brown," Susan replied. Mrs. Brown saw Susan dumping her garbage and looked puzzled. "Do you usually put everything together in one plastic bag?" Mrs. Brown asked. "Yes, why do you ask?" Susan responded. "Don't you recycle at all?" asked Mrs. Brown. "Recycle?" Susan said, looking puzzled. "Yes, it is best to separate paper waste, cans, plastic, and glass," answered Mrs. Brown. "Do you see the boxes over there? You can put them there. Then you should put everything else in a plastic bag and throw it out. It is one way to save the earth." Susan's face went red. "I didn't know that," she said. "I should be more careful and recycle from now on."

"Oh, that's a door to the attic, but we can't go up there. My brother told me that there is a ghost," Peter said. "Ghosts? There are no such things as ghosts," James said, laughing at Peter. "No, ghosts are real," Peter said. "There's no ghost in the attic. Do you want to bet?" James asked, and Peter thought for a minute. "OK, but what if it were true?" he asked. "If I lose," James replied, "I will call you 'big brother' for a month. If I win, you call me 'big brother.'" "Deal," Peter said. James and Peter got a flashlight and opened the door. The dusty stairs came down. They walked up to the attic quietly. The attic was dark and dusty. They saw some boxes. "What's in the boxes?" James asked. "I don't know," said Peter, opening one of the boxes. Then all of a sudden, they heard a screeching sound. "What was that?" James asked Peter. "I don't know," answered Peter. "Let's just get out of here." Then the screeching sound became louder. They ran down from the attic as fast as they could. "Wait. Who won the bet?" James asked Peter. "I don't know. I don't like that place anyway. Let's play something else," Peter said, walking to the kitchen for a glass of water.

M: Luke didn't have school today, so he decided to go to a bank and open a bank account. "I will get some ice cream after I go to the bank," Luke thought. "Then maybe I will call John and play computer games with him." Luke had a perfect plan. He went down to the bank. "I would like to open my own bank account, please," Luke said proudly. "May I see your ID?" the bank teller asked. "Oh, no," Luke said. "I must have left it at home. I will come again next time." Luke was disappointed, but he didn't want to go back home to get his ID. He went to the ice cream shop to cheer himself up instead. "One cup of strawberry ice cream, please," he said. After he ordered his ice cream, he realized that he had left his wallet at home, too. He had to walk out of the store without the ice cream. "I will call John and play computer games," he thought. Luke called John, and John agreed to come over. When they were at Luke's house, Luke turned on his computer. When he clicked the game icon, the computer froze. "Oh, no!" Luke exclaimed. "What's happening to me today?" Luke learned that you can't control when unexpected things happen. He hoped for a better day the next day.

Listen and answer the questions.

T: We are going to the bank near the school tomorrow. We will meet the manager, Mr. Ron Miller. He will tell you about his job, and each one of us will open a bank account there. Are you all excited? Before we go there, I have a few things I want to go over. As I have already informed your parents in a letter to them, you need to bring a photo ID. Also, there will be some people working with customers. Please behave when you are at the bank. Listen carefully to what Mr. Miller tells you, because there will be an assignment regarding his talk. Also, for those of you who do not wish to open a bank account, please show this note to your parents and bring it back to me with your parents' signatures on it.

Dictation

Part 1

Listen and fill in the blanks.

1.

Hi, I would like to open a savings account today.

2.

A credit card is used as a payment method.

3.

Since I was five, I've been collecting as many coins as I can.

Part 2

Listen and fill in the blanks.

1.

W: How may I help you today?

M: I would like to open a savings account, please.

2.

B: I have been keeping it in my drawer. I should open a bank account and keep it in the bank from now on.

G: Yeah. It is safer to keep your money in a bank.

Part 3

Listen and fill in the blanks.

1.

M: Hi, Mrs. Roberts. This is James Lord from Dawson Bank. You visited our bank this afternoon to open an account. After you left, I found your ID on the floor. Please visit our bank one more time to get your ID back. I will keep it safe until you come again. Thank you.

2.

W: Hi, Lily. This is Amy. I would like to open a bank account. I just moved to this town last week, and I am still not very familiar with it. Can you recommend a bank that is close to my home? If you are free tomorrow afternoon, let's have a cup of tea! You helped me move in, so I want to treat you. Call me when you get this message.

Part 4

Listen and fill in the blanks.

1.

M: Luke didn't have school today, so he decided to go to a bank and open a bank account. "I will get some ice cream after I go to the bank," Luke thought. "Then maybe I will call John and play computer games with him." Luke had a perfect plan. He went down to the bank. "I would like to open my own bank account, please," Luke said proudly. "May I see your ID?" the bank teller asked. "Oh, no," Luke said. "I must have left it at home. I will come again next time." Luke was disappointed, but he didn't want to go back home to get his ID. He went to the ice cream shop to cheer himself up instead. "One cup of strawberry ice cream, please," he said. After he ordered his ice cream, he realized that he had left his wallet at home, too. He had to walk out of the store without the ice cream.

Listen and fill in the blanks.

Part 4

Listen to a story about Laura.

W: Firefighters came to visit Laura's school. They told the students how dangerous it is to play with fire. "Many children play with fire for fun at home, but this is very dangerous. You could burn the whole house down and get hurt in the fire," one of the firefighters said. Then they taught the students how to use a fire extinguisher and things they should do in case of a fire in the building. "We are going to do a fire drill. A fire drill is an activity we practice to escape when there's a fire in school," the chief firefighter continued. "When you hear the fire alarm, don't panic. Stay with your classmates and the teacher at all times. Do not run or push others when leaving the building."

After school, Laura was walking home, and she spotted some young children playing with matches on the playground. Laura told them, "It is very dangerous to play with matches. Fire is not good to play with. You can actually burn yourselves." Then the young children nodded and promised that they would not play with matches anymore. On the way home, Laura felt proud of herself. She was glad she learned something important in school today.

Listen to a story about Sam.

M: Sam had a long day. He got up early for soccer practice, he went to the library to do some research for his new history assignment, and he went to the zoo to volunteer. On his way home, he got on the subway, and spotted an empty seat. He was glad to sit down and rest because he was very tired and hungry. After a few stops, an elderly woman got on the subway. She was carrying a big bag and stumbled. He saw the woman, and normally he would have given up his seat, but he did not want to get up this time because he was very tired. "What should I do?" The longer he sat there, the guiltier he felt. Finally, he decided to give his seat to the woman. "Why don't you sit here, ma'am?" he said. "Thank you very much. How kind of you! Will you be OK standing?" The elderly woman gave him a big smile. "I'll be fine. Please take my seat," Sam replied. He still had seven more stops to go, but he felt much better. When he got home, he told his parents about what he did on the subway. "You did the right thing. Think about if it was your mom or dad at that age, and a young person didn't care about your mom or me," Sam's dad said. "I'm very proud of you," Sam's mom added. Although what Sam did was a small act of kindness, he was glad that he'd had a chance to help others.

Listen to a teacher giving a history lesson.

T: I am going to tell you a story about a man in England. His name is Terry Herbert, and he has been a treasure hunter for more than 18 years. He uses his metal detector to hunt for hidden treasures underground. One summer, he found more than 1,300 ancient artifacts. The artifacts seemed to be from the Dark Ages. The Dark Ages was a time when England was having many fights. Archaeologists say that the artifacts tell us about the wealth of England during the Dark Ages. Because there were many fights, burying valuable things underground to hide them from enemies was a common thing to do. For tomorrow, I want you to bring an item that you treasure and write a letter to yourselves. We will put the items and letters all together in a time capsule and bury it underground. We will open it together on your graduation day.

31. (B) 32. (C) 33. (C)

Listen to a student's speech.

G: Teamwork can be very difficult because each team member must contribute his or her effort. Otherwise, no one on the team will succeed with the work. Of course, it is not easy since each member may come up with a different idea, and certain members might only want to do a particular job. It is very important to be open-minded and respect each member in the group. I once had a friend who thought the topic of our assignment was too difficult for her, so she went to the teacher a few days later and asked for a different topic without consulting with me. I was very upset because although the topic was not easy for me either, I tried to be responsible with my job, but my partner absolutely ignored the fact that we were a team. Sometimes the purpose of teamwork is not just to do an assignment to get a high grade, but to learn to build relationships and deal with problems wisely through cooperation and responsibility.

34. (C) 35. (A) 36. (B)

Listen to a teacher in a classroom.

T: Today, we are going to talk about how to stay healthy. Staying healthy may sound very simple but it's not easy. Who can tell me some ways to stay healthy?

G: We should wash our hands when we come home from school.

T: That's one way. Any other ideas?

B: We should exercise regularly and get enough sleep.

T: Very good. As you all know there are several things we can do to stay healthy. We should exercise regularly and eat nutritious food. We should also balance our eating habits and avoid eating too much junk food. It's not healthy to play computer games for a long time. Do you know why? It's because it will make you lose your concentration, and your eyesight will go bad. Since you are still growing, you need to enjoy outdoor activities more often. We are going to make a health chart in class. I want you to write some plans for different outdoor and indoor activities that you can enjoy each day. Also, I want you to keep a daily record of your diet starting today. This will help you know whether or not you are getting enough nutrition each day.
