3

Language point

Study the sentences in the table.

1	2	3	4
What	are	you	doing?
Where	is	he	swimming?
Why	is	he	buying souvenirs?

How do we ask questions in present continuous? Add these headings to the correct part of the table.

verb + -ing	question word
subject	a form of "to be"

Study these sentences.

Where's Auntie Rachel now?

Auntie Rachel is taking photos of the old streets and buildings.

She always goes out alone. She takes so many photos. It's her job. She's a photographer.

Choose the best word to complete the grammar rules.

We use present continuous to talk about things at this moment or around now / that happen regularly or are always true.

We use present simple to talk about things at this moment or around now / that happen regularly or are always true.

Study these sentences and read the grammar information.

Oh, you're having an ice cream. I like ice cream. Now I want an ice cream too!

- Some verbs cannot be used in continuous forms.
- These are verbs that describe feelings that are always true. We call these state verbs.
- Other examples are love, don't like, hate and prefer.
